Industrial Welding Technology

High tech manufacturing processes using newly developed materials has created a greater need than ever before for skilled and experienced welders.

Welding-related expenditures in manufacturing, construction, repair and maintenance are in excess of $34 billion per year. Many of these jobs are critical to the nation's wellbeing, such as energy production, highway transportation, manufacturing and military applications.

Industrial manufacturing is at its highest level in 20 years, and you can be a part of it through the skills you gain in the Industrial Welding program.
